

bella is Moving Sale! FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13TH - SATURDAY, DECEMBER 14TH

Home / Ravalli Republic || News / Montana/Regional

Montana's first-ever wolf trapping season opens Saturday

This August 2012 photo shows an image provided by Wolves of the Rockies of the Lamar Canyon wolf pack on a hillside in Yellowstone National Park, Wyo. The pack's alpha female was shot Dec. 6, in Wyoming, among at least five collared wolves from Yellowstone killed by hunters this fall. Four more wolves collared in the park but no longer living there also have been shot.

December 14, 2012 4:00 am • By Erin Madison - Tribune Staff Writer

\(2\) Comments

GREAT FALLS, MONT. -- Montana's first wolf trapping season begins Saturday, and more than 2,400 people statewide have been certified to participate.

Montana held its first wolf hunting season in 2009. In the two wolf seasons since, hunters were unable to meet the harvest quota. The Fish, Wildlife and Parks commission voted to allow trapping during the 2012-2013 season, and this year there is no statewide quota.

"We are clearly aiming to reduce the wolf population in Montana," said Ken McDonald, FWP's wildlife bureau chief in Helena, earlier this year.

In order to trap wolves, hunters are required to complete a six-hour class, covering some of the gear, procedures and ethics of trapping.

"There was tremendous demand for the classes," said George Pauley, wildlife management section supervisor for FWP.

FWP offered some 2,700 class slots and certified more than 2,400 trappers.

"I think we were surprised," Pauley said. "We didn't expect quite that many."

The general archery season for wolves started in September, followed by rifle season in October.

So far hunters have killed 90 wolves this year, which is less than last year.

Montana officials shut down wolf hunting, trapping near Yellowstone

BILLINGS — Montana wildlife commissioners on Monday closed down the gray wolf season in some areas outside Yellowstone National Park after sev... Read more

Montana may limit wolf trapping near Yellowstone Park

BILLINGS — The shooting of collared gray wolves from

Yellowstone National Park is prompting Montana wildlife commissioners to consider new res... Read more

Idaho wolf trapping to open; pet owners warned

For the second year, wolves will join furbearers as targets during Idaho's winter trapping season. Read more

Wolf trapping season begins; protest held in Missoula

Montana's 2012 wolf hunt shifted to a

Last year, by the close of the general big game season, hunters had taken 99 wolves. This year that number was only 81.

new gear on Saturday as trapping became a legal way to take the predators. However, state Fish, Wildlife... Read more

"Generally the harvest rate's just been lagging behind last year," Pauley said.

That may be because the novelty of wolf hunting is wearing off, and people aren't trying as hard to pursue them.

"It could be that wolves are becoming a little more wary of hunters," he said.

But that's just speculation, Pauley added.

The slow harvest could also have to do with the lack of snow, making it difficult to track the animals, said Ty Smucker, wolf management specialist with FWP in Great Falls.

"Otherwise it's kind of like looking for a needle in a haystack," he said.

Smucker is curious to see how successful trappers will be during Montana's first trapping season.

Idaho allowed wolf trapping for the first time last year, and it increased the harvest by about 50 percent compared to the previous wolf hunt, Pauley said. However, Idaho allowed traps and snares, but snares are illegal in Montana.

"We don't expect Montana hunters will have the same success," he said.

Wisconsin hunters also saw success with a wolf-trapping season, Smucker said.

While thousands of people took the wolf trapping class, Smucker doesn't expect that they all will participate in wolf trapping this year.

"It requires a lot of equipment and gear to go out and trap wolves," he said.

Many class participants were surprised by how gear- and time-intensive the sport is.

Hunters can take one wolf, and trappers are allowed three wolves, meaning if they've killed one with a rifle or arrow, they can trap only two others.

Trappers are required to check their traps every 48 hours and must kill trapped wolves immediately. A wolf harvest must be reported to FWP within 24 hours by calling 800-385-7826. Wolves must be brought to FWP within 10 days of harvest.

"We collect information from the hunter and the wolf," Pauley said.

Traps must be at least 150 feet from a public road or trail and at least 1,000 feet from a trailhead or campground.

This is to keep people and pets safe.

"If you're letting your dog roam widely ... it very likely may encounter a trap," Smucker said.

If someone does come across a trap, it is illegal to move it or otherwise disturb it.

"It is illegal to step on that trap or disturb that trap in anyway," he said.

Wolf trapping and general rifle seasons end Feb. 28, but some trapping and hunting rules may change between now and then. There are several wolf-related bills that may be introduced when the Legislature convenes in January.

"There is potential legislation to reduce the nonresident tag price," Pauley said.

Other bills would allow hunters to use electronic calls and allow hunters to harvest more than one wolf.

Reach Tribune staff writer Erin Madison at 791-1466 or emadison@greatfalltribune.com. Follow her on Twitter @GFTrib_EMadison.

Copyright 2013 Ravalli Republic. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

Tags Trapping, Biology, Montana, George Pauley, Hunting, Animal Cruelty, Fur Trade, Animal Trapping, Gray Wolf

More Montana/Regional Stories

Air Force captain from Idaho killed by IED in Afghanistan

Avalanches kill 2 Jackson snowmobilers within 2 hours

Former Flathead sheriff's worker accused of embezzling

Butte police: Drunk pulled knife on mocking kids

from employee group

TRENDING OFFERS AND ARTICLES

Secret revealed: Stock guru turns $10,000 into $120,000 with these penny stocks

Easy Tips to Reduce Your Cell Phone Bill and Save Thousands Today With a Single Call.

Tricks You Can Do to Easily Get the Lowest Hotel Price Possible.

One Little Thing All White People Could Do That Could Make A Difference in the World

ADVERTISEMENT

Recommendations

Sponsored Links

Sponsored Results

Is He Cheating On You?

1) Enter His Email Address 2) See Hidden Pics & Social Profiles Now! Spokeo.com/Is-He-Cheating

Brain Training Games

Train memory and attention with scientific brain games. www.lumosity.com

3\) Keys To Kill Cellulite

Cellulite can only be nailed 1 way; Nothing else works. These 3 moves. www.CelluliteSolutionOnline.com

